STATEMENT OF COMPLIANCE

HON MICHAEL MISCHIN MLC
MINISTER FOR COMMERCE

Dear Minister

In accordance with section 16 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act 1984, I submit for your information and presentation to Parliament, the Annual Report of the Commission for Occupational Safety and Health for the 12 months ending 30 June 2013.

George Allingame
Chair
Commission for Occupational Safety and Health

REPORT FROM THE CHAIR

As Chair of the Commission for Occupational Safety and Health (the Commission), I am pleased to present its annual report for the year ended 30 June 2013.

The Commission is established under the Occupational Safety and Health Act 1984 (the OSH Act) and is responsible to the Minister for Commerce. The Commission's functions include providing advice to the Minister on occupational safety and health (OSH) matters and publishing occupational safety and health codes of practice and guidance material.

The harmonisation of work health and safety laws under the auspices of the Inter-Governmental Agreement for Regulatory and Operational Reform in Occupational Health and Safety (the WHS IGA) continued to be a major focus for the work of the Commission in 2012-13. In view of the Government's commitment to establishing the regulatory impact of the model regulations in Western Australia, and the finalisation of the mining regulations prior to introducing harmonised legislation, the Commission agreed to extend the operation of its Strategic Plan 2009-12 pending a decision on implementation.

The Commission's advisory committees play a key role in achieving the Commission's objectives and in 2012-2013 were involved in several significant initiatives. In particular, I would like to thank the members of the Asbestos Management Review Working Party and the Working Hours Review Working Party for developing detailed reports regarding national developments within limited timeframes.

While the work of harmonisation has proven challenging, the Commission has continued to work to meet its objectives as the peak forum on OSH issues in Western Australia. In 2012 the Commission supported the WorkSafe Division of the Department of Commerce (WorkSafe) in its transition from the annual forum concept to a new initiative, Safe Work October 2012. The month long focus on safety incorporated Safe Work Australia's National Safety Week and comprised a number of events. The backbone of Safe Work October 2012 was a series of nine targeted workshops spaced throughout the month. More than 700 people, a mix of safety and health professionals and elected representatives, attended the workshops. The month concluded with a presentation breakfast for the winners of the Work Safety Awards 2012, with members of the Commission in attendance.

The Commission will continue to monitor developments in the national arena consistent with the Government's commitments under the WHS IGA and will review its strategic objectives to ensure they continue to meet the expectations of Western Australians as the peak body for occupational safety and health matters in this State.

In closing, I would like to thank members of the Commission and members of all advisory committees and working parties for their efforts and dedication during the year. Finally, on behalf of the Commission, I would like to acknowledge and thank all WorkSafe officers for their hard work and professionalism over the past year.

George Allingame

Chair, Commission for Occupational Safety and Health

Any such information is included in the annual report of the Department of Commerce for 2012/2013.

SECTION THREE: REPORT ON 2012-2013

National harmonisation of occupational health and safety legislation

In July 2008, the Council of Australian Governments formally committed to the harmonisation of work health and safety laws by signing the WHS IGA.

An independent panel reviewed work health and safety laws in each state, territory and the Commonwealth and advised the then Workplace Relations Ministers' Council (WRMC - now the Select Council on Workplace Relations) on the optimum structure and content of a work health and safety Act that can be adopted in all jurisdictions.

The model Work Health and Safety Act (the model WHS Act) was endorsed by the WRMC on 11 December 2009. After being released for a public comment period ending in April 2011, the model Work Health and Safety Regulations (the model WHS regulations) were redrafted by Safe Work Australia and presented for approval to the Select Council on Workplace Relations (SCWR, formerly the WRMC) on 10 August 2011.

Safe Work Australia (SWA) continued to release model Work Health and Safety codes of practice (model WHS codes) during 2012-13 and the Commission, and the Legislation Advisory Committee (LAC), have continued to review the model WHS codes for their application to safety and health in Western Australia. A particular focus of these discussions has been to ensure that important areas of regulation in Western Australia are adequately covered in the model WHS codes when no similar regulation exists in the model WHS regulations.

In 2012, the Western Australian Government committed to the preparation of a regulatory impact statement (RIS) for the model WHS regulations. Commission members provided submissions through their organisations during the public comment period, and the Commission continues to monitor the progress of the RIS.

Safety and health representatives' forum

In 2012 WorkSafe Western Australia, with the support of the Commission, moved away from its traditional one day forum in preference for a new initiative – Safe Work October 2012. This entailed a month long focus on safety and health, and incorporated Safe Work Australia's National Safety Week. The month featured a number of activities, the most significant of which being a series of targeted workshops.

The workshops were all conducted at Technology Park in Bentley over the course of the month with 709 attendees across the nine events. The attendees were a mix of elected safety and health representatives, general management, and safety and health professionals. The key objective of these workshops was to provide hands-on information and skills experiences. They also provided the OSH community with networking opportunities.

The workshop series featured a range of speakers with a wealth of knowledge and expertise in OSH. The program included a mixture of sessions ranging from Risk Assessments, OSH Management Systems and Workers' Compensation, through to Safety Leadership, Safety Conversations and Safety Engagement.

Commission accredited introductory training courses for safety and health representatives

Under section 14(1)(h) of the OSH Act, the Commission may accredit training courses in OSH. Details of the accreditation process for introductory courses for safety and health representatives is provided in the publication Guidelines and criteria for accreditation of introductory training courses for safety and health representatives (the accreditation guidelines), which is available from WorkSafe's website, www.worksafe.wa.gov.au.

The organisations providing Commission-accredited training courses for safety and health representatives are listed on WorkSafe's website. An annual report of participation in training courses for safety and health representatives will be published later in the year on the website.

Publications

The Commission has continued to review model WHS codes released by SWA during 2012-13. This included areas presently regulated in Western Australia under the Occupational Safety and Health Regulations 1996 (the OSH regulations) which have no specific regulations under the model WHS regulations. As new drafts of model WHS codes are released, the Commission, the Construction Industry Safety Advisory Committee (the CISAC) and the Legislation Advisory Committee (the LAC) have considered analyses of these gaps.

Changes to legislation

The following amendments were made to the OSH regulations during 2012/2013.

WRITTEN LAW	GAZETTAL DATE
Occupational Safety and Health Amendment Regulations (No.2) 2012 Updated the definition of "medical practitioner"	27 July 2012
Occupational Safety and Health Amendment Regulations (No.2) 2013 Updating the reference document for driver fitness to provide consistency with transport regulations	14 June 2013

The National Arena

Two hazards were a subject of significant discussions in the national arena during 2012-13; asbestos and bullying.

The Commonwealth's Asbestos Management Review proposed a number of recommendations for the removal of asbestos in the built environment in a nationally coordinated fashion. Asbestos is a significant issue in Western Australia and the Commission established the Asbestos Management Review Working Party to provide advice to the Minister on the recommendations.

In October 2012, the Commonwealth House of Representatives Standing Committee on Education and Employment released its report Workplace bullying: We just want it to stop. This was followed by the Commonwealth Government's response to the report released on February 2013. The Commission published the code of practice: Violence, aggression and bullying at work in 2010 and has monitored developments on this subject with a view to providing advice on the impact of any further proposals on duty holders in Western Australia.

The Commission also continued to participate in the national harmonisation of work health and safety laws and the development of model codes of practice and guidance material.
