

Western Australian previous minimum wage rates 2016–2021

WA minimum conditions of employment

About this document

This document provides information on minimum rates of pay from previous years. These minimum rates of pay applied to award free employees.

If the relevant employee was covered by a WA award, please check the previous award rates. The 2016 – 2021 WA award summaries are available on the Wageline website, and copies of previous versions of all WA awards are on the Western Australian Industrial Relations Commission website www.wairc.wa.gov.au. Wageline can also assist with previous pay rates, contact Wageline on 1300 655 266.

This document is formatted for viewing on the Wageline website and contains web links to other relevant information. If you are using a printed copy in which links are not visible, all additional information can be found at www.dmirs.wa.gov.au/wageline or by contacting Wageline on 1300 655 266.

Disclaimer

The Department of Mines, Industry Regulation and Safety has prepared this document to provide information on pay rates for award free employees. It is provided as a general guide only and is not designed to be comprehensive or to provide legal advice. The department does not accept liability for any claim which may arise from any person acting on, or refraining from acting on, this information.

Two Step Check: to make sure this information is relevant to you

Step 1 Is the business in the state system?	This information applies to businesses in the state industrial relations system. The state system covers businesses (and their employees) that operate as: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ✓ sole traders (e.g. Jane Smith trading as Jane’s Beauty Salon) ✓ unincorporated partnerships (e.g. Jane and Bob Smith trading as Jane’s Beauty Salon) ✓ unincorporated trust arrangements (e.g. Jane and Bob Smith as trustees for the Smith Family Trust trading as Jane’s Beauty Salon). ✓ incorporated associations and other non-profit bodies that are not trading or financial corporations From 20 June 2022, the state system also covers household employers (people who are not operating a business but who directly employ someone to provide domestic services in a private home). This information does not apply to businesses and organisations in the national system which operate as: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ✗ Pty Ltd businesses that are trading or financial corporations ✗ incorporated partnerships or incorporated trusts ✗ incorporated associations and other non-profit bodies that are trading or financial corporations. For more information visit the Guide to who is in the WA state system page. If the business or organisation is in the national system visit the Fair Work Ombudsman website www.fairwork.gov.au

Step 2 Check whether the employee is award free	WA awards set minimum pay rates and employment conditions for specific industries or occupations. If an award applies, it is unlawful to pay rates less than those in the applicable WA award. Check whether an award applies to the employees in a particular businesses by contacting Wageline on 1300 655 266. If no WA award applies, the minimum rates for award free employees listed below will apply.

Industrial inspectors at the Department of Mines, Industry Regulation and Safety have powers under the IR Act to investigate employee complaints about underpayments of pay rates and leave entitlements under state employment laws. Industrial inspectors also undertake regular proactive compliance audits in particular industries to determine if employers are paying correct wages and keeping correct employment records.

The penalty for contravening an entitlement provision under state employment laws or not complying with a requirement relating to employment records or pay slips is up to $13,000 for individuals and $65,000 for bodies corporate. Higher penalties apply for serious contraventions of up to $130,000 for individuals and $650,000 for bodies corporate. An industrial inspector is also able to give a person a civil infringement notice, similar to an ‘on-the-spot fine’, for not complying with employment record or pay slip requirements. Record keeping requirements are outlined in the Employment records section of this summary.

Employees who believe that they have been underpaid, or wish to make an anonymous report of wage theft, should visit the Making a complaint about underpayment of wages or entitlements page.
